

Corporate Social Responsibility Philosophy

In an era of rapid environmental degradation and widening income gap between the rich and poor, commitment to sustainable development has become vital. Nagarjuna Agritech Limited firmly believes that corporates, with their monetary, human and collaboration strengths, have the necessary resources to help restore the balance. We believe that pursuing sustainable development ultimately creates real value for business and all its stakeholders. Our keen sense of commitment to sustainable business practices and to socio-economic development in regions where we operate, emanates from our strong belief system.

We strive to make a positive difference to our people and to the communities in which we work through labour welfare, community programs and donations. We encourage our employees to participate in our community programs. We think this is an excellent way in understanding our communities, fostering close ties with them and increasing team spirit.

Being in the business of agriculture, one of the closest occupations to Mother Nature, we have a first hand understanding of the adverse impact of environmental degradation. Our cultivation and business practices, therefore, focus on conserving resources and using natural methods wherever possible.
